Abstract

- Natural signals, and body movements are derived from the internal human feelings that have developed in the natural flow of life without voluntary interference or educational system. Among the most significant body movements is Crawling on the ground. The study has dealt with crawling in relation to terms in Ancient Egyptian religious texts.

- In Pyramid Texts
  * Concepts highlighting crawling varied as crawling indicated snakes crawling away from the land of the deceased and their falling. Crawling also referred to entering caves and sitting in front of offering table as in the case of the snake "Hiw". The crawler was also described as the “Evil Doer” that turns his face and is punished by the great deity, (maybe “Re”). In addition, spells commanded the bull to crawl. It crawled as a result of the wounds in his eye and male organ. The enemies of the deceased crawled as a punishment where the deceased warned them of falling and crawling as a punishment for them. Moreover, the location called "hr-ṣḫy" was described as a place in the hereafter where the deceased crawled.

- In Coffin Texts:
  * New symbols appeared to denote crawling in the Hereafter in which the deceased was invited to crawl while surrounded with security and protection. The meaning of crawling indicated restoration of the body and returning the body members as an action or work with crawling. Monsters and snakes crawled, like the snake "Hiw" which the spells warned against.

- In the Book of the Dead:
  * The previous concepts that appeared in the Pyramid Texts and Coffin Texts were repeated, but here “Apopis” or "ṣḫp" appeared embodied in a great snake crawling in the eternal lake which was a place for crawlers.

Keywords
Crawl, Hiw, Snake, Apophis, Horus, Bull.

Introduction:
- * Natural signals and body movements are derived from the inner human feeling and are developed in the natural flow of life without intended intervention or an educational system that puts standards and systems for these signals or body movements, as they are signals or body movements derived from the situation. They came by instinct without learning or mutual introduction between people. (1)

- Signals and movements for respect and honor/reverence
- *As mentioned before in the determinant of the word "Ksi" represented by the sign "𓊨" (2) A16 “a leaning man, so his arms go downwards when leaning in front of the body down to the knees. And in the Old Kingdom, the king’s servants and the servants of the tomb owner appeared in the leaning position. Sometimes, the arms went downwards as in the determinant of the word "Ksi" and the people who appeared were near or relatives of the tomb owner.

* In the middle kingdom, the servants appeared in the honoring/reverence position, but rarely were they depicted in the leaning position, people also appeared in the old kingdom with both arms raised to praise "rdi i3w". They were also depicted while receiving the king through the scenes related to Egyptians and foreign peoples. And in the eleventh dynasty, the leaning position appeared for the foreign peoples.
* In the new kingdom, the 18th dynasty, there are pictures of bowing of the foreign peoples accompanied by the word "Ksw" in the description (3) (fig.2) (4) and in the new kingdom the scenes were limited to the following positions:
  (A) the arms hanging down straight with the sides of the body and the palms of the hands wide open and sometimes one palm closed and the other open and this body movement appears in the following cases:-
  (1) The servants in the offering lines to the tomb owner and in front of their chiefs in the scenes of the daily life.
  (2) In the funerary procession there is respect and reverence for deceased and the event itself from the relatives of the deceased and his servants and “mww” dancers.
  (3) The Princes, nobles and priests in presence of the king.
  (4) One of the deities in presence of the great deity.
  (B) One of the arms in the curved on the chest and palm closed, and sometimes open and holding the shoulder while the other is on the lap/thigh.
  (C) Severe curvature (5)

Research aims:
*In spite of the variety of sources that indicated that the physical signals of the body, they completely ignored the crawling position for the Ancient Egyptian, especially in the linguistic texts (6). Thus, the study has dealt with this topic that was not pointed to before that is crawling in Ancient Egyptian religious texts.
* the form of crawling in Ancient Egyptian religious texts a form of revenge, as the deceased ordered the monster "H iw" embodied in the crawling snake. This was after the twining of snakes around itself and the exit of the cattles on lawn. The text indicated the following in the Pyramid Texts (7).
recitation: the snake twines around the other snake and cattle with canines exiting the lawn twine. O earth, swallow what comes out of you. O Monster, "Hiw," lay down, crawl (8) the majesty of pelicans fall into the water. O (snake), turn around, twine through the vision of "Re". (9).

*The previous concept was reflected in Coffin Text Spells where Crawling formed a kind of safety and protection so that the deceased is granted power and the "w3s" where the text highlights the following (10).

Methodology:

Pyramid Texts:

* The signals are numerous and various for crawling in Pyramid Texts in addition to its concepts. Crawling indicated snake crawling away from the land of the deceased to their fall. In addition, crawling signified entering caves and sitting in front of the offerings table like the snake "Hiw" which ordered him to crawl there (14).
*The crawler was also described as the evil doer that turns his face and is punished from the great god (may be Re. (15) the spells also ordered the bull to crawl. It crawled because of what had wounded its male member, maybe he means by the bull one of the forms of gods/deities, probably “Seth” as some of spells signified the need to its falling and crawling. (16)

As for the enemies of the deceased themselves, the spells indicated that they will not live and they will fall and crawl as a kind of punishment for them(17). Also, there are gods that fall like that god that the Pyramid Text spells pointed to its fall due to the harm in his eye (18). In addition, the spells indicated a kind of wild snakes “Sriw” that turns over and crawls, and they warned the deceased of it, (19) in addition to the snake "nRw" that crawls as a kind of threatening and punishment for whoever errs (20). Also, the location called "hrt- ‘hT” was described as the place where the great black god/deity as well as the deceased probably (21).

eternal water fall and crawl (25).

* And in spell 240 of the Pyramid Texts, the snake "Hiw" is called upon to crawl. The text states the following (26):

(1) [Image]

(2) [Image]

(3) [Image]

(4) [Image]

"nr - ihw Hr hnd.f hnd (w) hr sbn niwt Hr hm (n) ny rh (w) hr hrt imy nnyt.f st5.s ti imy tpt.f hiT.f t (si5) Hr hT t3 i imi hiw sbn (27)"

“The herd of bulls is Horus which / that treats, the king treats (28) (w). May the king crawl in the city of Horus; the king does not know what he ignores (i.e. what is not important to know) your face is in the marshland of "nnyt " , it pulls that who is in his cave, his offerings table is Horus’s that penetrates the ground and gives, O monster, "Hiw", crawl (29).

* The place of crawling in the city of Horus has been determined. The verb "sbn" has been used to indicate the meaning “crawls at all times”.

*Expressions referring to crawling and doing evil:

* the word "s5.ti " (state) has been used to mean “the crawler” who has been described as the evil doer who turns his face behind the deceased where the text states the following (30):
Expressions referring to Crawling and gods:
* Spells of Pyramid Texts indicated Horus's falling because of the wounds in his/its eye. Thus, he has to crawl on the ground. The spell states the following:

(1) "dd mdw ir.ti ir.ti s3.ti s3.ti hr.k h3.k sz tw ry wr (31)"

Expressions referring to Crawling and living creatures:
* Some texts and spells referred to the bull fall and crawling away. Here, the bull represents a symbol of evil. Probably what is meant is one of the gods like “Seth” or “Ibis” (40).

The spell states the following in relating / binding / knotting it with the snakes and all symbols of evil (41):

(1) "hr Hr n irt.f sbn k3 n hr. wy f ihr sbn (35)"
Recitation: the bull falls to the snake "sḏh", the "sḏh" snake falls to the bull, fall and crawl (43).

In addition, spell 298 states in describing the bull that crawls after extracting poison from the body and knotting the four ropes. (44) It states (45).

"sšr f mtwt.k m fdw ipw r rwdw imy ḫt tbwt Wsir Hiw sḏr k3 sbn (46)"

*In addition, spell 314 of the Pyramid Texts states that the high horns bull (48) retreats to fall after that. It crawls with the desire to weaken his /its powers and make it/ him weary. The following was stated (49).

"dd mdw ḫr k3 n sḏh ḫr sḏh n k3 iḥr sbn (42)".

Recitation: retreat backwards, bull with high horns. His horns are 3kr’s fingers (god of) the land and they are horns. May he / it fall and crawl (51).

*Expressions referring to crawling with prohibited and forbidden acts for the Ancient Egyptian:-

Some spells indicated the falling of the deceased in his stool and his crawling in his urine which are prohibited (52) that the Ancient Egyptian had warned against, and he used them as a kind of threatening here, as the spell states (53).

"iḥs ḫw ir ḫr.k p3ḥ.s ḫw ir ḫr.k iḥr.k m ḫs.k sbn.k m wsšt.k iḥr sḏr sbn m33 ḫw mwt.k nwt (54)".
“It/she slaps your face, it/she wounds your eyes, you fall in your stool and crawl in your urine. May you fall, sleep and crawl and your mother “nwt” is watching you (55).”

Expressions referring to crawling and dropping the enemies in the Hereafter

*And in the events of spell 384 of the Pyramid Texts, he threatens his enemies by King Tti and the goddess Mafdet the dweller of the house of life and warns him of falling and crawling. The spelling states the following in its content. (56)

*Expressions referring to crawling and dropping snakes in the Hereafter:

*it was stated in the events of spell 389 of the Pyramid Texts that the snake "Sriw" crawls in the jungle and turns over. The meaning is warning against the snake and its crawling to refer to its strength, where it stated the following (59):

Recitation: This hand that belongs to “Tti” will come against. It is the tied (handcuffed), the great (the description here means goddess Mafdet) in the middle of the Life House that catches or holds will not live; who slaps/hits (58) will not have his head tied. May he fall or crawl.

“Recitation: O Great Black One, crawl in “hr - cꜣhꜣ” inside the place they are crawling in.”(67)

Coffin Texts:

New concepts and symbolisms appeared for the expressions referring to crawling where they were related to protection (68), as the deceased was called to crawl while he is protected and surrounded by safety (69) . The meaning of crawling also referred to returning the body members, where crawling was mentioned before restoring the body and returning it. (70) Crawling also referred to the crawling of living organisms and creatures, like: crawling of "Hiw" (71) embodied in the form of the snake.

Expressions referring to crawling and the concept of protection in the Hereafter *spell 847 of the coffin Texts states the concepts that the deceased is granted through doing some jobs among which is crawling. It states: (72) .

(1) N

"N pn ṭwt imy s³ ii m ḏꜣꜣ ḏt sp 2 ḏd N pn rꜣ r.k imnw sw sdm.k sw (73)."
“It is you, the one surrounded by protection. And you have come crawling through the place -twice- say this spell for yourself and hide him. You hear him (74).

(1) [diagram]

*iw:t  sbn:t  iw  iti  n  N  tn  dt  N  tn  r.T (76).

* You crawl and take the body inside you (77).

*Expressions referring to crawling and living creatures:-

*Reference has appeared to the snake Hiw Just as (78) are in the pyramid texts ,meaning to keep him away where the text states the following

(1) [diagram]

"Hr tp t β  Hiw  sbn  n  bbbh  tβ (79)"

“O Horus, on the ground/ land,O Monster "Hiw" crawl and keep firm on the ground . (80).

The Book of the Dead

*the previous concepts in the P.T. and C.T. were repeated once more in the B.D. The god Aapp (Apopis) appeared. This god was embodied as great snake that crawls away from the eternal lake (81).

* Expressions referring to crawling and the snake “aApp”

* The spell stated the following in a reference to the crawling snake aApp in its location in the eternal lake) (82).

(1) [diagram]

"sbn  inty  m. (i)  aApp  is  mh.k  r  $  nwn ".

“Crawl. Keep away, aApp. Go, drown in the eternal lake, Nwn”

In addition, the following was mentioned in the spells of ch. 39 of B.D:

(1) [diagram]

"sbn  aApp  hfty  n  Rc ".

“Keep away, aApp, enemy of Re” (83)

Results:-

* Some terms and verbs have been used to express the meaning of crawling in the Pyramid Texts like the verb “[diagram]” "sbn " “to crawl” and the verb “

“sA. “ These terms / words referred to various meanings and symbols, such as:
(1) a kind of punishment and threat to enemies as there was warning to the snakes and threat to them to crawl in the Hereafter.
(2) crawling of the snake " Hiw " for protection against its danger.
(3) crawling referred to evil and described the crawler as the evil doer that one should be aware of and who turns his face away from the deceased.
(4) relation to deities, where Horus fell due to what injured his eye in the events of the Osirian myth, and it/he crawled on the ground as the holy snake crawled in the Delta jungle.
(5) relation to the living creatures, as the spells stated the bull crawling away. It symbolizes evil that goes away from the deceased.
(6) to the forbidden where crawling was mentioned with the stool and urine of the deceased. He crawls in them so that the spells warn from this forbidden act.
(7) dropping the enemies as the deceased (King Tti) and goddess Mafdet threaten whoever plots against them by crawling.
(8) to the body members where he crawls and holds the body within him after its member renewal.
(9) to the snake crawling such as the monster snake " @iw " that crawls to warn the deceased of it.

*The words " sbn " and " hB3 " were used in the CT to refer to the meaning of crawling referring to:
(1) the meaning of protection and preservation, and takes care and crawls to the hereafter.
(2) to the body members where he crawls and holds the body within him after its member renewal.
(3) to the snake crawling such as the monster snake " Hiw " that Crawls to warn the deceased of it.
* Also, the spells of the Book of the Dead the topic of Crawling. The word " sbn " to refer to the following meanings:
(1) the crawling of the god “aApp” Re’s enemy away from him.
(2) Mythological locations like the eternal water lake where the crawler “3pp”.

Discussion:
* Natural signals and body movements are derived from the internal human feeling and that developed in the natural pathway of life without purposeful intervention or educational system that puts standards and systems for such symbols and body movements (84). Although the sources(85) are various that referred to body movements, they completely disregarded crawling for the Ancient Egyptian and the terms referring to it. The verb “ sbn " was used to refer to the meaning “ to crawl " and crawling is a symbol of threat for enemies among which is the monster god " Hiw " may he/it fall and crawl(86). Crawling was related to evil doing and the crawler " S3.ti" was described as the evil doer who turns his face behind the deceased (87). In addition, the verb " sbn " was related to god crawling, as Horus crawled (his eyes were injured on the earth/ in the events of the struggle between Horus and Seth. In addition, the snake crawled in the "nAwt "jungle moving far from the field of the deceased(88). Also, the expressions referring to crawling appeared as in the verb "sbn " in a relationship to the living creatures where the texts and spells referred to the bull fall (89) and its crawling away from the deceased. The verb "sbn " appeared as a forbidden and illegitimate act for the Ancient Egyptian where the spells referred to the deceased falling in his urine, which is one of the forbidden acts and his crawling in it. Threat and warning in texts were from that verb (90).

* The verb "sbn " to refer to the enemies falling in the hereafter where King Tti confronted his enemies and ordered them to crawl(91). In addition, crawling "sbn " referred to snakes crawling in the hereafter like snake "Sriw " (92) and snake "Siw " (93) crawling. Some places in the Hereafter appeared, like "hr - 'h3 " as a location for crawling(94).

In CT/ Coffin Texts:
*the word"  "hf3 " appeared for the first time to refer to crawling . Here, crawling came for the first time as a protective act against evils in the Hereafter that the deceased does (95).
*Crawling appeared in relation to returning the body members where the spells stated that the deceased crawls "sbn " and takes the body into himself (96). Also, crawling was related to monsters and living creatures living where spells warned against the monster "Hiw "(97) that crawls in the hereafter.

*The verb “sbn” appeared to refer to the crawling of snake Apopis/ Aapp Re’s enemy. There also appeared the crawling location in the eternal lake “nwn”.\(^\text{98}\)

Conclusion:

In spite of the variety of the sources that referred to movements and signals related to the for the Ancient Egyptian, they disregarded crawling and expressions referring to it for the Ancient Egyptian.

*In PT:

Crawling vb. “sbn” “to crawl” appeared to refer to the punishment of enemies, where they were ordered to crawl far away.

Crawling vb. “sbn” also refers to crawling of the monster snake “Hiw”.

Also, the word "3. ti" to refer to the meaning of crawler who is the evil doer in the Hereafter a the spell described him.

Crawling referred to deity crawling, such Horus who/ that is wounded in its eye, and that crawled in the events of the conflict between it/him and Seth.

Spells also ordered the snakes like “dsr” to crawl in the jungle “n3wr” away from the deceased.

Crawling “sbn” symbolized crawling of living creatures like the bull which probably represented or was a symbol of evil here.

Crawling vb. “sbn” referred to dropping the enemies in the Hereafter. They were ordered to crawl to threaten and drop them. Also, some locations in the Hereafter appeared as a place to crawl, such as "hr - 3ḥ" , the place that the deceased crawl in.

CT

* The word "ḥfḥ" appeared for the first time to mean “crawl” being related to protection and security, where the deceased crawls to be granted security and protection against the dangers of the Hereafter.*

BD

* The snake Aapp appeared crawling away from the deceased in the events of the struggle between him and Re. In addition, the place he is crawling in and its “nwn”.
